JOSEPH HARDING UNDERWOOD

Ere this mountain land knew the pioneer, Unknown tribes of strange races rounted To live strange wild lives of action, Guided in thought by legend, myth and fable. Rugged sapphires still sprawl the earth crust And recall the diagon of Indian lore. But, now, the minds of men geasp At the plan of a world. Reaching far beyond the blue of morning. Rays of ever shifting light dazzle sight And few are gifted to read their visions. Those quiet scholars Who in their mortal wandering Have wrought true value in material intangible Wear, at their journey's end, The mantle of that tene nobility Whose worth is counted In coin minted of themselves,

Dr. Morton J. Elrod, chairman of the Biology department, organized the department in February 1897. Classes were then held in the old Willard School building, which was the University at that time. The first class in the department consisted of six students. In 1926 the Biology department had thirty-five majors.

In 1898 the class rooms for the biology department were moved to Main Hall, where they remained until 1919. At this time the New Science building was constructed and the department was given more room and equipment. Until 1912 Botany and Zoology were included in one department.

The museum was started at the same time the department was founded. It consisted of personal collections of Dr. Elrod's and those of members of his classes. In 1899, the Biological station was started at Yellow Bay, on Flathead lake. A building for the materials collected was erested in 1912. Although the station has not been open for five summers, it has been in existence more than twenty five years.

Botany, the science dealing with the life, behavior, distribution and classification of plants, was elected by four students in the fall of 1910. This science was given in connection with Forestry, Joseph E. Kirkwood teaching both courses. Three years later when the School of Forestry was established as a separate unit, Botany was retained in the College of Arts and Sciences and Dr. Kirkwood remained as chairman of the department.

A museum of both botanical and biological subjects occupies a large part of the third floor of the Natural Science building. Additions are being made constantly to the rollection. From the original number of 7,000, there are now 18,000 herbarium specimens.

In the fall of 1926, one hundred seventy-five students representing fifteen percent of the student body, were registered in Botany.

Potential corporation executives and financial wizards are found in the School of Business Administration of which Shirley J. Coon, who came to the University in 1919 at the request of President E. O. Sisson, was the organizer. Prior to this time, there had been courses in business, but there was a constant demand for more specialized fines. Business Administration was a department for about two years and then became a separate school. Two instructors assisted Dean Coon.

During the year 1926-1927, there were ninety-two students in the department. The total number of graduates of the School is one hundred five, an average of more than twenty each year. Only juniors and seniors are admitted to major in Business Administration, but underclassmen may take a Pre-Business Administration course, which will prepare them for more advanced work,

Dr. Jesse and Dr. Cateman joined the family of the Chemistry department in 1912, while Dr. Howard came to the State University in 1915.

The science half was constructed in 1898. Previous to this rime, chemistry laboratory work half not been developed to any great extent, because of the lack of equipment and necessary room.

In 1926 the Chemistry department had a total of thirtysix majors.

Economies was first taught in 1897 by Oscar Craig, who was then president of the University.

Dr. J. H. Underwood, who organized the Economies department, did not become a member of the faculty of the State University until 1907. At that time he was head of the History and Economies department, under which department Economies, Sociology, History and Political Science were taught. In 1911 the Economies department was organized as a separate department,

At the time of Dr. Underwood's death in October 1926, Dr. S. J. Coon, dean of the School of Business Administration, was appointed head of the Economics department.

In June of 1926, there were thirty majors in the Economics department.

Education work began with two courses in 1903 under the department of Philosophy, but became a separate department in 1914.

By a legislative act of 1914, the University issues certificates of Qualification to Teach to graduates, who satisfactorily complete the course and work outlined. Prior to this time, University graduates were by law given a life diploma to teach after two years successful teaching experience. Observation and Practice Teaching was therefore introduced. Nine graduates in 1914 received the first certificates offered. In 1926, one hundred six extract certificates,

Under the leadership of Freeman Daughters, assisted by W. R. Ames and W. E. Maddock, the Education department offers seventeen courses regularly during the year and four teen or fifteen additional courses during the summer session. Professor Maddock devotes approximately one third of his time to work of the Extension Division and the placement of teachers.

Oscar J. Craig, former president of the State University, was the first professor of Literature in 1895. In 1898 Ennice Hubbell and Eloise Knowles were added to the faculty of the Rhetoric and Literature department. President Craig was then chairman of the department.

Miss Frances Corbin, who is the oldest member of the faculty of the English department, has been at the University for a quarter of a century. Mr. Metriam became chair man of the department in September of 1919.

In 1920 the Frontier was first published by the Creative Writing class. The magazine, which is the work of English students, appears once a quarter. This is the seventh year of publication.

The English department has grown to be one of the largest departments in the University. In 1926 there were one hundred thirteen majors in the department.

Fine Arts received its introduction at Montana under the supervision of Eloise Knowles in 1898. The art studio was located in the old Williamson building. Later it was moved to the third floor of Main hall, where it occupies two rooms; the main art room and the art office.

Free hand drawing was the leading course taught during the early days. Today a variety of courses are taught in cluding Drawing, Design, History of Art, and Advanced Work in Art.

The Art department has a large number of casts, pictures, and photographs from which its students take their work. At present there are thirty one majors and seventy five other students enrolled in this department. It is now the third largest school in the University,

Public attention is being attracted to the act department through the displays of act work by other artists and from other act departments that they exhibit.

In 1895, the year of the organization of the University, Modern Languages were offered in connection with the department of engineering, Frederick C, Scheuch, now vice-president of the university, taking charge of both departments.

Two degrees were then offered: one in Modern Languages, the other in Ancient Languages, of which William M. Aber was professor. At his death in 1918, the Ancient Language department was discontinued until W. P. Clark came in 1921. The departments then merged into one and a degree in Foreign Languages was offered.

At the order of the Council of Defense, the study of German was discontinued in 1917. A huge bonfire destroyed textbooks and reference books of the language. Fortunately, a good German library was not destroyed. Two years ago the study of German was revived.

Mr. Skeels, now Professor in the Forestry School was at the head of the Ranger School and had as his assistant. Dr. Kirkwood, Forestry School classes at this time were held in a little room in the attic of Main Hall with an attendance of seven students.

The State Legislature created the School of Forestry in 1914. Professor Skeels secured $65,000 from the government and built a shack for the Forestry School, which is now the A. S. U. M. Store.

The little shack served well seven years. With the increase of forestry students, the course demanded a larger and better building and in 1921 one of the finest forestry buildings in the West was built,

Geology at Montana is under the supervision of expert authorities. Dr. Jesse P. Rowe and Dr. Charles H. Chapp have both done research work along geological lines, and have improved the department by adding to its supplies and collections each year.

The department opened on December 15, 1900 with Dr. Rowe, present chairman, at the head. Fifteen students attended the first class which was held in two rooms in the Pharmacy building. The department now has over two hundred students taking Geology, and ten special students majoring in the course.

The Geology department has a large number of supplies, which it keeps collecting and adding to each year; either by purchase, exchange or research work.

Missoula is a rich territory in Geologic deposits and offers a wonderful opportunity, both to the instructor and the student, to study in practical work of the Geologic field.

Political and Economic Progress, a general course in elementary social science for freshmen, was inaugurated in 1922 by the departments of History and Economics. Nineteen students were graduated in History in 1925 and about the same number will be candidates for degrees this year.

A library of Northwest History, perhaps the most extensive in the world, is found in what is known as the "Treasure Room" of the library building. The department also has an extensive collection of English Constitutional history.

Through the Smith Hughes Act, the department receives special aid and works in some courses with the Home Economics department of the government. During the year 1925-26, more than half the number of women students in the University were registered in some Home Economics course. This year there are sixty majors in the department.

The courses offered cover a wide field; nutrition, clothing and design, institutional cookery, textiles, and home administration and planning are among the varied subjects given in the department.

Professor Robert Holiday taught the first course of Journalism at Montana by erecting two tents in front of the women's gymnasium and announcing that the school was open to all who would run the risk of pneumonia in their effort to become a journalist.

The School of Journalism was officially opened by Dean A. L. Stone, present Dean of Journalism at Montana, in 1914 with about fifteen students in attendance. A shack was constructed and was the home of the early Journalists until after the World War when the school moved into Marcus Cook Hall, the war barracks. It has housed the School of Journalism since 1921.

Today the School of Journalism is the largest school on the Campus. Its courses have been greatly increased and student majors now number one hundred seventy, with more than fifty other students taking courses in the department.

The "Montana Kaimin," the student paper, is put out twice a week by the Journalism students. Sigma Delta Chi, national Journalism fraternity, sends out news stories each week to state papers and keeps Montana people informed on University happenings.

Montana's Law School was established in 1911, and was located in the present law building which was then the University library. It occupied one of the floors of the building and had a small law library.

At present the Law School is one of the outstanding schools on the Montana Campus, occupying the three story law building, with a fine library which is adding thousands of dollars worth of books to its shelves each year.

Standard courses are offered. The faculty is composed of graduates of law schools at Harvard, Yale and Chicago University,

One of the outstanding features of the law school is the establishment of the honor system, which has been successfully operated since the founding of the institution.

Montana's law school is listed as a class "A" and is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, Courses were first offered in Library Economy in 1911. Since that time, thirteen women have majored in this department, two have minored. Among the subjects offered are: Cataloging, Reference, Library Administration and Economy, Selection and Buying of Books, and Public Documents. The study of Public Documents is an important one, because the University has been designated as a depository for every official document issued by the government.

In addition to class study, practical experience is gained by practice work for a prescribed length of time in the different libraries of Missonia. The high school, university, city and county libraries afford varied types of study.

Two years of college work are required before the student may take up the regular technical courses. Preliminary practice of one hundred eighty hours in an approved library is a pre-requisite for the beginning courses.

An innovation in the fields of science is the study of Survey of Mathematics, sponsored by the University of Montana. Professor N. J. Lennes, head of the Mathematics Department since 1913, instigated the idea in an article in the Educational Review in which he stressed the value of the study of mathematics for culture. Since that time, Dr. Lennes has written a text hook on the subject which is now used in twenty-five colleges. The new arrangement covers trigonometry, analytic geometry, calculus, etc.

Miss Cynthia Elizabeth Reilly, one of the first five members of the faculty, was the original instructor in mathematics at the university. Louis Clark Plant, coming in 1907, and Eugene F. A. Carey in 1909 assisted her. L. S. Hill and A. S. Merrill were also faculty members. Mr. Merrill is now in Scotland studying statistics.

R. O. T. C. was organized at Montana by the National Defense Act. The object is to provide systematic military training at civil educational institutions for the purpose of qualifying selected students for appointment as Reserve officies in the Military forces of the United States and give valuable training in citizenship and duty.

Montana's Military department belongs to the Senior division, with an instructor and a number of assistants from the regular United States Army, at its head.

Freshmen and Sophonores at the University are required to take R. O. T. C. A selected few take the advanced courses and are granted a regular United States commission.

During the origin of the department at the University only military factics were taught. At present a number of features have been added. Shooting matches are held between the companies and the different institutions compete against one another. Athletics is being taken up by the Military department and a track meet and baseball games will be held during the spring quarter.

Dr. Elrod, present professor of Biology, was the first head of the Physics and Sciences department, which opened in 1896.

The Physics department occupied one-half of the floor space on the ground floor of the old Science half during the early days. It consisted of a lecture room that scatted fifty students and a laboratory in which twenty-four students could work at one time. Apparatus was scarce and consisted mostly of subjects to produce light and electricity.

Today the department is located in the New Science hall, occupying almost a complete floor of the building. It has a large laboratory room with equipment and apparatus to put on the hardest Physics tests.

Majors in the Physics department have increased fourfold since the opening of the department. There has been an increasing demand for men trained in physics, through new social influences such as X-ray and radio.

RELIGION

WHEREM L. YOUNG

By the cooperative effort of the President of the University, the Law School, and the Missoula Ministerial Association, the School of Religion was created in 1924. A student may carn as many as fifteen credits in this department towards his degree.

The School of Religion is non-sectarian in spirit as well as in organization. Dogmatism and intolerance have no place in the class room. An earnest effort is made to be pedagogically sound and scientifically accurate in method. The purpose of the School is to make its necessary contribution to the development of the whole man social, intellectual, aesthetic and religious. The interest in the study of religion is evidenced by the steady growth in enrollment each quarter.

CLASS OF 1898

It was a beight June day in 1898,

Two young women, the first graduates of the State University, walked from the campus, realizing that they were no longer Montana students; they were now Montana's first alumni.

One of them, Eloise Knowles, returned to the campus in the fall of 1898 as an instructor in the fine arts department. She served the University in this capacity until 1915, when ill health forced her to go to California on a leave of absence. The following spring she lost the fight for health, and answered the final Roll Call. Eloise was the daughter of Judge Hiram Knowles of Missoula, and received her early education in a girls' school at Boston.

Mrs. Ella Robb Glenny, the other of the two, was the wife of the chief dispatcher for the Northern Pacific railroad here. Before coming to Montana she attended the University of Minnesota. Mrs. Glenny is now living in Chariton, Iowa.

The Class of 1927 was the first to live in North and South halfs. The Frosh that year had the highest average of the classes, and since the beginning the class has always had a splendid representation on the University honor roll.

Some of the greatest athletes Montana has ever had are members of the Class of '27. The names of Gillette, Kelley and Sweet brought nation-wide recognition to Montana athletics. Cogswell, Coyle, Ritter, Stark, D. Hanson, R. Davis, Tarbox, Burrell, Ted and Bill Hodges have all been outstanding in the various sports. All of these men have been instrumental in bringing honors to Montana.

JUNIORS

Red vests with yellow "28's" were the distinguishing garb worn by both men and women of the Junior class this year. This is something new as heretofore Junior men have worn "cords" and Junior women have had no insignia.

Since the painting of the "M" in freshman days, the class has kept its pep and energy. As sophomores, the Tanans and Bear Paws served efficiently. Various members have received recognition in dramatics, debate, scholarship, Gles club, and athletics. Outstanding athletes are: Miller, Pearce, Bessey, Rogulien, Vierhus, Tiernan, Brittenham, Whiteomb, Ostrum, Rafferty, Kain, Morrow, Drew, S. Hanson, Graham, Overturf, Adams, Tysel, Davis, B. Hodges, Harmon and Wohl.

On October 11 the first meeting of the Sophomore class was held for the purpose of electing officers.

At a meeting held the latter part of November, plans for the annual Sophomore dance held in honor of the Frosh were discussed. The dance proved to be unusually successful.

On October 9 the new members of Tanans, Suphomore honorary for women, and of Pear Paw. Suphomore honorary for men, were tapped.

There were approximately three hundred Sophomores registered in the fall quarter,

The fall of 1927 witnessed the enrollment of the largest Frosh class in the history of the University. This year the Frosh were given a week in which to register and get settled before scheduled classes began. This time was designated as Freshman Week. During this week the class selected temporary officers: Henry Miller was chosen President; Russell Smith, Vice President; Geraldine Gray, Secretary; Wm. Graffin, Treasurer; and Paul Needham, Representative to Central Board.

Under Miller's leadership the class painted the M, issued the proclamation and built a huge bonfire for the raily which preceded the Idaho game. Permanent officers were chosen later. Under these officers the class of 30 recently gave the M its easter coat of Whitewash, planned a party for the Sophomores and made plans for class day.

Under the editorship of George Greenwood the first Sentinel made its appearance in 1904. It was the first college anomal to be issued in the state. The staff in their message to the student body said; "We have begun and laid the corner stone. You must take up the work where we have left it."

From a publication of ninety-one pages with twenty-five ents the Sentinel has grown to a book of two hundred-fifty pages with more than three hundred pictures.

PROFESSOR H. G. MERRIAM . Division

Founded and published for the first time in the fall of 1919 by a new class on the campus, that of creative writing, the Montanan immediately gained popularity and prestige until it now holds a meritorious position among the publications of its kind throughout the country. A few years ago the name of the publication was changed to Frontier.

The Frontier is a literary gent, published quarterly under the supervision of a board of editors chosen from the creative writing class. It contains poetry, short stories and prose composition, submitted by Montana students and exstudents.

Developing from a monthly magazine, owned and printed by the old Press Club and appearing for the first time in 1908, the Montana Kaimin has become one of the best semiweekly university publications in the northwest.

About 1910, under the editorship of George Stone, the form was changed from a magazine to a five column newspaper, 12x17, and it was printed until 1912 without organized student support. The club sold the Kaimin to A. S. U. M. in 1912,

The paper has been increased in size, and for the past three years it has been issued semi-weekly and now has a circulation of one thousand two hundred.

The Montana Alumnus, the publication of the alumni of the State University of Montana, is issued four times a year. The Alimnus was first published in October, 1906. and the paper was issued quarterly, as it is now, It was started first as a means of stimulating the alumni association to a greater activity. The '08 Sentinel says of it. "So far the work has been largely experimental It has come to stay; and staying, it will devote all the power to the upholding of an enthusiastic alumni association." George Greenwood was the first editor and Harold Blake the first business manager.

THE BAD MAN

University dramatics became a definite part of the student body with the construction of the campus "Little Theatre" during the fall term. Simplets hall, an old was time becauses, was chosen as the theatst becation and the work of remadeling one wing of the building into a stage and antitorism was considered early in November.

into a stage and anditorian was completed early in November.

The first play to be presented was "The Bad Man," by Porter Enerson Brown. This was staged on the nights of November 23, 25 and 26 with great success. Critics were of the opinion that it was the last production of its kind ever presented by University players. The Krimin review classed the play as: "The amplify fire country and a real laughing hits all the thrills of a gesuine camble coupled with an an usual lave sleep. The cust performed to perfection."

In the fall of 1919, Montana established debating relations with other colleges, meeting several teams. In 1921-22 we debated Columbia university at Butte, and this same year held our first annual debate tour. A woman's team was also organized at this time.

This year has been the fullest and most successful Montana has ever had, having participated in twenty five contests. Of the ren debates held while on the tour, Montana won four, lost three and three were non-decision.

Those who won their gold M for dehating are: Archer, Aronowsky, Astle, Beck, A. Blair, E. Blair, Bonner, Booth, Brennan, Gorton, Haugland, Grandley, Johnson, Lake, Larsen, McCarthy, McFarland, Murray, Negherbon, Phelps, Pool, Reeley, Sager, Smith, Thomas, Wohl.

GRIZZLY BAND

ALBERT HOUSEBUR Director

Montana's first Grizzly Band was formed when a Missonla hand disorganized in 1898 and gave it's instruments to the State University. Until the spring of 1922 the band was a student organization almost entirely. At that time Professor U. A. Atkinson took charge of the group and moulded a real military band out of the loose student organization.

Professor Albert Hoelscher took control of the band in the fall of 1925 and has finished the work started by Professor Atkinson, that of lifting the Grizzly Band to it's present high standard.

MONTANA'S FIRST GLEE CLUB

GLEE CLUB

The idea which led to Montana's first glee club was conceived in February, 1993. Under the leadership of R. Blinn Owen, a club of sixteen men was organized from students and faculty; after a considerable amount of practice concerts were given in Hamilton and at Missoula.

In 1913 DeLoss Smith took over the club, and under his leadership the club has made an enviable name for itself around the state. Nearly every year the club has made a tour of the state, and has been warmly received at every stop along its way. This year several shorter trips were made instead of the long tour.

MONTANA'S FIRST ORCHESTRA

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

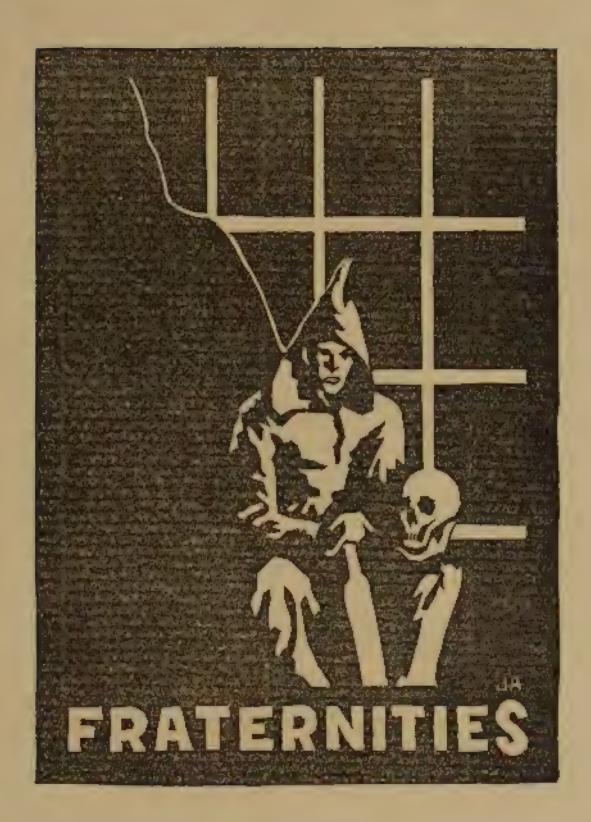

Professor A. H. Weisberg organized the University Symphony Orchestra in 1920 and gave a concert at the Liberty theatre in the fall of that year.

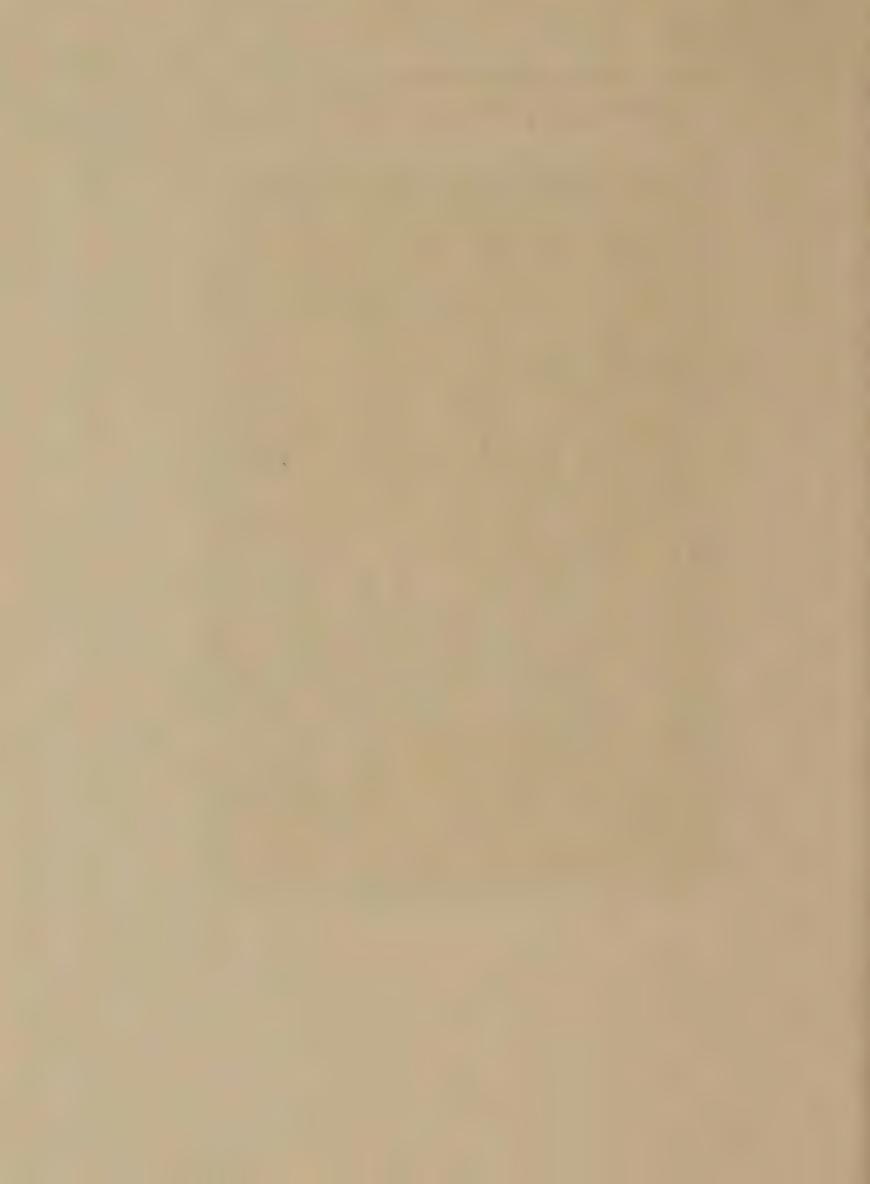

The Orchestra is limited to thirty players and each year the standard of performance has improved until it is now the outstanding organization of its kind in the state.

In the fall of 1926 the Orelestra played a concert at Hamilton. The result of this may lead to the giving of more concerts in places near Missoula.

Inter-fraternity council is composed of two delegates from each social fraternity on the campus. The council's function is to act as a governing body with general control over the men's greek-letter organizations. Rules for the handling of rishing week, pledging of men, and for the settlement of any difficulties among the fraternities are made up by this group.

This year the fraternities, through the council, aided the Masquers in the purchase of a curtain for the Little Theatre, and the Bear Paws in replacing the "M" on the tower of Main Hall.

SILENT SENTINEL

Silent Sentinel was founded as a secret body in 1904 under the leadership of President Craig and Professor Sibley to promote a spirit of self-sacrifice and the desire to work for the betterment of the University.

President Duniway, who was greatly opposed to all secret organizations, took control of the University in 1908, and Silent Sentinel was forced to make known it's membership and activities, shortly afterwards becoming non existent.

In 1921 it was revived and has exerted considerable influence on student affairs since that time. Members are "tapped" in their Junior year by Dean Stone at the Trackmeet SOS.

AUBREY HOUSTON - Sec. Treas.

Organized in 1914 by a small group of enthusiastic students in the School of Journalism, the Press Club has developed into the largest club on the campus. Meetings are held every two weeks, when discussions and lectures on the various phases of the profession of Journalism are given by faculty members and newspaper men of the state. Over one hundred students are enrolled in the club this year.

Dean Stone night and the Press Club banquet are traditional social functions of the club, and are held annually in honor of Dean A. L. Stone, head of the School.

Since its official establishment on the campus in the fall of 1922 WAA has taken ascending leadership in women's athletics. The fact that M Club members, as well as WAA officers, are now members of the Executive Board, gives this group added strength.

In 1922 the point system was introduced whereby a coeed may win a white sweater with an English M for women's athletics by making one hundred fifty points in specified sports. WAA has special supervision over interclass and inter-organization baseball and basketball tournaments each year, hiking, track, swimming, riflery and tenuis meets.

One of the flashiest Grizzly teams ever to be seen in action defeated the Bobents 27.0 on Clark Field, Butte, November 23. It was the first team to be formed out by Major Frank Milborn at Montana and that team won the proise of the entire Northwest.

Coming from the East where he had conclud for several years and where he had gained fame while at West Point, Major Milburn found up here in the wilds of Montana a boy by the name of "Wild Bill" Kelly, who for two years had flashed like a comet on Western gridienns.

Next year will find all this year's men in suits with the exception of Coyle. Ed Chinske, Bud Linville, Ted Rule and others from this year's fresh team will be available to Coach Stewart.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

Freshman backetball brought forth namy good Varsity prospects Lincible, all state forward of 1996 showed exceptional work. He is repulsed to be one of the best men seen on local floors in many years. Militer of Livingston backed good as a forward, Rule and Buckly at center showed up well, Doberty, Mitchell, Rankin, Wilson, Robinson, and Gallan worked well as guards. Wendt and St.Bings were a pair of five forwards.

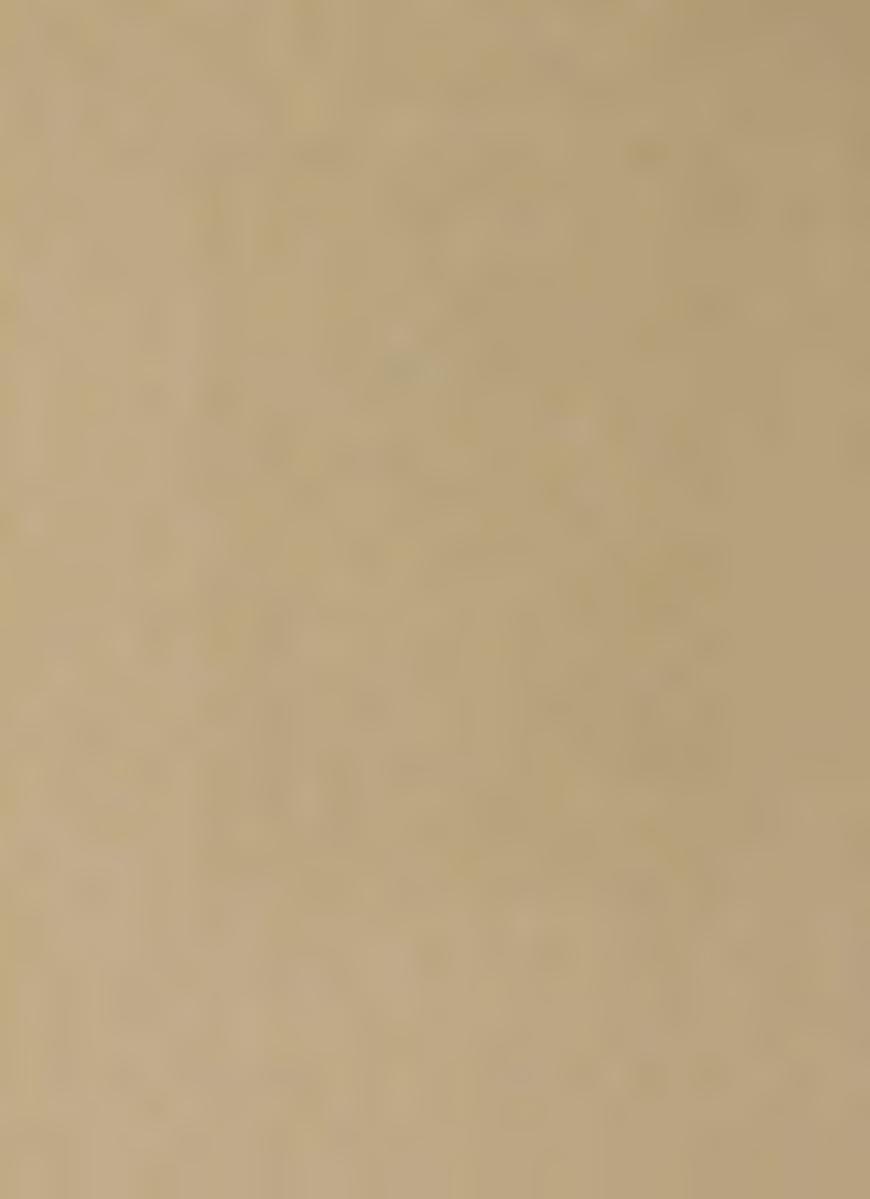

The season was very successful. Defeats were few. The Bubbuttens again triumphed over the Cubs with McFarland, forward for the State firest, starring. Couch Adams had a very successful season and developed several men that book like Varsity soutering.

With a host of possibilities of future Grizzly track stars the 1927 freshman squad prourises to be one of the greatest yearling teams in history. The squad worked out under Coaches Stewart and Adams along with the Varsity.

In the triangular meet with Loyola and Missoula High School the cubs were easy victors. Woodworth of Stevensville was high point nam of the meet with 21 points. He won the high hurdles, broad jump and 59 yard dash and placed second in the 199 and 229 yard dashes. lingson, burdler and sprinter, appeared as a great prospect for future Stewart squads. Nilsson, sprint sensation of 1926 Interscholastic, was anable to do much work because of illness. Parks, holder of the Interscholastic pole vault record; Priest and Fisher, hurdlers; Spencer, Perry, Midlistadt and Gillan, weight men; Clark, Keyes, Brannon, Curtiss, Remer, Ryan and Baldwin, runners; and Burke, pole vanitor, made up the remainder of the squad.

Facing the task of building a team of a few lettermen and many inexperienced ball players. Coach Milliana called the squad together at the opening of the spring quarter.

Captain Bill Kelly led the list of lettermen as a catcher and infielder. Drew, catcher and outfielder; Morrow, outfielder; Brown and Rafferly, pitchers, had all had previous experience as Grizzlies. When the large squad was weeded down Captain Kelly was found at third base. Rogalien, Callison and Fehlhaber at second base, Chirske and Catlaway at short, Charteris and Roeder holding down first, Drew behind the bat, Brown, Rafferty and Wold doing most of the pitching and Morrow, T. and B. Hodges, Ritter and Paige playing in the outfield.

The season started with several practice games with Fort Missonla; in the majority of the games the Grazdies showed superiority. The conference schedule opened with a two game series with Idaho here. Although Montana lost both games, they showed the making of a good bail club.

Twelve games are on the Grizzly schedule this season. Two two game series are scheduled with Idaho, one series at Moscow, the other at Missoula: Washington State College will play host to Montana at Pullman and will then journey to Missoula to fill out the schedule. Two games will be played with Ganzaga at Spokane and two two game series with the Aggies, one series at Bazeman and the other at Missoula.

A Service That Is Outstanding

When, in June, 1909, Mr. Penney, after seven years and two months of arduous and painstaking work, gave over the management of our "Mother Store" in Wyoming to an assistant whom he had trained to merchandise and sell the Golden Rule way, he completed the cutting of a pattern for efficient store-keeping.

During all the years that have followed, this now world-famed pattern has stood out as the supreme achievement in broad store service to the public.

People have benefited to the extent of millions of dollars saved in the cost of the requisites of life.

THE BLACK HEART

How Oswald Came Home

Oswald returned from college. His parents, etc. were astonished. His clothes were smartly tailored, his golf socks and ties were of hot original design. On his face was the blank expression of one obnoxiously "K'Llegiate." Why—? On his vest appeared a sinister sign: a black heart—skull and cross bones..... But like a diamond in the rough, that heart was surrounded by pearls of wisdom.

MONTANA FIGHTS

The Transfer Foresteen

Per Too Harlie Field (a)

MONTANA'S NEW FORESTRY LAB

By Clarence Powell

Two and one-half square miles of the funest Larch, Douglas Fir and Yellow Pine timber in the state comprise the new forest placed at the disposal of the School of Forestry of the University, through the contrest of the War Department and the United States Forest Service. From the furtherest corner on the compets extension to the southeast, and by highway, the school forest is but three miles distant.

When Fort Missoula was established in the late '70's, the War Department wisely made provision for a continuous supply of fuel and building material by setting aside this timber reservation. It is need less to state that the choicest stand in the vicinity was thus reserved. From time to time the temps at Fort Missoula removed a little of the timber for their own uses—but the bulk of the forest remains intact—free from devastation and from forest fire. This is the area that has now been dedicated to the permanent use of the University and its School of Forestry as a field laboratory, as an experiment station in the forest types native to the site, and as a work-shop to determine, if it he possible, the financial aspects of continuous forest production from the standpoint of the private timber land owner.

It is doubtful if any Forestry school in the United States possesses a better or more accessible forest laboratory. To take full advantage of its native resources will require the construction of a field laboratory building, for the use of both under graduates and research workers, the creetion of five towers, the making of the area five safe, and the gradual conversion of the area from a wild wood to the highest type of managed forest.
